Several Announcements to Follow Northland Power Contribution

Northland Power is the most recent major contributor to step forward and buy naming rights in the Credit Union CU Plex. The Ontario based company, which has set its sights on the Battlefords area for a new power plant, is also getting involved in another of the region's most anticipated projects.

A brand new company to our area coming in and committing $750,000 toward the curling rink component is a real class act, said Credit Union CU Plex Fundraising Committee Co-chair, Rob Rongve.

Co-chair Heath Gabruch agrees.

We couldn't be more excited about Northland Power taking part in this project at this level. They have certainly demonstrated their commitment to our community.

Northland Power has not yet chosen a name for the Curling Rink.

The goal of the fundraising committee is to raise $10 Million, hopefully by late September. Committee members are optimistic as they continue to make calls and pound the pavement to pitch sponsorship opportunities. Approximately $6.1 Million has come in so far.

In the meantime, several donors have been coming forward with thousands of dollars in recent weeks, wanting to sponsor everything from rooms to scoreboards. Announcements on those contributions are forthcoming.
